FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
Dec. 5, 2013

hughesc@lackawanna.edu

Lackawanna students recognized by state educators association

SCRANTON, Pa. – Four Lackawanna College students were recently recognized by the Pennsylvania Association of Developmental Educators with individual scholarships.

Anselm Osman, of Hartford, Conn., DJ Navoczynski and Jami Lee Anderline, both of Scranton, and Brianna Grunza, of Carbondale, each received $125 towards their degree at Lackawanna College from PADE, an educational organization that addresses the needs and interests of developmental educators at postsecondary institutions across Pennsylvania.

Students selected to receive the scholarship funds each had a GPA of 3.0 or higher and completed at least one developmental course during their studies at Lackawanna College. Academic development coursework is designed to provide students with additional instruction in order to foster future success in their studies.

-30-

CAPTION: Shown during the recent scholarship announcement are, from left, Don Korinda, Lackawanna College math tutoring lab coordinator; Anselm Osman, Hartford, Conn.; DJ Navoczynski, Scranton; Brianna Grunza, Carbondale; and Christine Kiehart, Lackawanna College assistant professor and chair of academic development. Absent from photo, Jami Lee Anderline of Scranton.